I do think that the midterm was very different than than the weekly quizzes and we needed to know a lot of these things in detail which seems odd

| Dr. Zhou was an exceptional instructor for PM 527: Epidemiology of Infectious Disease. She consistently demonstrated a high level of attentiveness and made a clear effort to engage students, even within the challenges of an online learning environment. Her classes were interactive and thoughtfully structured, and she regularly paused to check in to ensure that students were understanding the material.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Dr. Zhou maintained a positive and encouraging attitude throughout the course, which helped foster a supportive learning environment despite varying levels of student engagement. She demonstrated expert knowledge of epidemiology and disease transmission and was particularly effective at explaining complex clinical concepts in a clear and accessible way. When students had questions or were confused, she took the time to provide additional context and clarification, which was greatly appreciated. Overall, Dr. Zhou's dedication to student learning, combined with her expertise and teaching approach, made this a valuable and engaging course experience. |
| The class was a joy to be in. Great class structure and assignments to ensure understanding. Would not change anything!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| She was absolutely great! Explained difficult concepts in an easy manner and in a digestible way. Her care for her students also came across in lectures and assignments. Very timely responses and very helpful overall.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| The schedule of group work assignments was confusing so that piece could use re-evaluation.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| The instructor did a great job at taking the criticism of being more exam focused, it shows she cares about what the students need. The assignments were great and really helped with the information shared during lecture. The lectures at first had started off with too much information, at times it felt overwhelming, when this was expressed in class the instructor changed the pace making the class much better to narrow down the key information.                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| I loved learning from Naying Zhou! She was so patient and was extremely thorough with all of the topics. The content was incredibly dense but she was always more than willing to review topics and answer questions. I hope she continues to teach for a very long time and never loses her enthusiasm or kindness!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| I think the practice questions were a great addition to the course, as it helps to check our knowledge on the subjects as well as great preparation for exams                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Dr. Zhou has been one of the best instructors that I have had at USC. She is always enthusiastic and engaging with class topics. Her passion and brilliance in regards to epidemiology shows and motivates me and my peers to do our best. At times throughout the semester, I felt overwhelmed with the density of the material presented in instructional videos and readings, and I reached out to Dr. Zhou. She was incredibly kind, gracious, and helpful with the material and put me back on the right track. I am incredibly grateful for the time and effort she always clearly puts into teaching the material. I would love to have her as an instructor again.      |
| Dr. Zhou did a wonderful job this semester. She is competent in regards to the material and I could tell that she put time and thought into the live session presentations, which I greatly appreciated.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Professor Zhou was a great instructor this semester! She genuinely cared about making sure that all of her students understood the concepts and was very fair in assigning and grading assignments and exams.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Professor Zhou did a great job adapting and evolving the course to be more focused. Some of the legacy material is quite broad and detailed in many directions, which it made it a bit difficult to feel like we were mastering the material. But the professor took action and began clarifying the main topics and focus areas for each section, which really improved the course. I also enjoyed the guest lectures as well. Thank you for a great course!                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| I think she will make a great professor if able to have more control over her curriculum                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Thank you for always taking the time to answer questions and clarify difficult concepts!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Thoroughly enjoyed this class. Initially, the pace and volume felt overwhelming, but as the semester continues, I find that it was just enough.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Great instructor! Catered to what students wanted and always asked for feedback!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| Detailed overview of the pathophysiology of disease transmission.                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Most valuable were the in-class lectures. Naying had a great mix of lecture and practice questions.                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Learning most prominent challenges related to infectious disease epi and feeling more prepared to address these. The quizzes were also a good way to stay on track and practice answering questions on the weekly materials                                                                  |
| Discussing biology of pathogens and how that relates to transmission and epidemiology.                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| The poll questions and professor's explanation of all the answer choices and why they were correct/incorrect.Lecture slides and recordings were most useful in my review.                                                                                                                |
| The discussions both in class and for group assignments were very informative and not only encouraged us to expand our knowledge on various subjects in the course, but also engaged with our classmates by providing constructive feedback                                                  |

| The topic of infectious disease epidemiology is fascinating. It is eye opening, and really motivates me to work in the field after I graduate.                                                                                                                                               |
| The instructional materials were very helpful, as were the live lectures.                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| There were many core concepts around disease natural history, immunology, and public health concepts that come together to help us understand and think critically about major infectious diseases and how to improve public health.                                                         |
| The assignments were relevant to what we were studying at each point in time throughout the semester.The professor carefully explained dense/difficult concepts while consistently checking for understanding and addressing confusion as needed.Feedback on assignments was timely. |
| It is very thorough, covering a large array of topics.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

| So many assignments were "freebies" – requiring little learning. This includes the participation, the weekly quizzes (repeatable), and group work. It was hard to not feel challenged.                                                           |
| There was no least valuable aspect of this course.                                                                                                                                                                                               |

| Some of the content felt more like I was taking an intro micro class and it was material I had full command on. But I also recognize that I come from a micro background and so I'm probably biased in that assessment.                          |
| some of the instructional materials were very dense and included excess information                                                                                                                                                              |
| NA                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| The density of some of the material can be a bit much or better explained. Perhaps topics like microbiology or immunology should be taught in a prerequisite or an entirely new program course altogether.                                       |
| No complaints!                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Some of the legacy materials are quite broad and not focused enough. This was a bit overwhelming in some areas, and the main points were diluted. However, the professor did a good job circling back and helping us understand the main points. |
| N/A (This course had very dense material, but the professor did an amazing job of helping us through it to the point where I personally did not feel that any aspect of the course was less valuable than another.)                              |
| The volume of material can feel overwhelming, and it is sometimes confusing to know what needs to be focused on / memorized.                                                                                                                     |
| Too many group assignments                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
